NOTICE.

WE the executors of Mr. William Triplett, and administrators of Capt. Thomas Triplett, deceased, give notice to all indebted to the said estates, by bond, note, or open account, for transactions with them in their life time, and also to them who became purchasers at the sale of their estates; to come forward and make payment by the 15th day of March next; otherwise their bonds, notes, and accounts, will, immediately after that day be put in suit without discussion. It is therefore hoped this notice will be strictly attended to, as we shall then proceed to divide the estate of Captain Thomas Triplett amongst his heirs, to settle with the court, and close our administration without loss of time. Such of the legatees of William Triplett, as purchased over their proportion of the estate, will be prepared for settlement at the same time; we being very anxious to settle and finish that business also.

MISCELLANEOUS POETRY, selected generally from the most entertaining and impassioned writings of the British poets.

(By the Rev. THOMAS DAVIS.)

In two Volumes, Octavo.

Price two and an half Dollars.

Sold by Robert Gray, & the Author,

A gentleman well known in Philadelphia, and who is greatly respected as a clergyman and justly esteemed as a man of letters, has given the following opinion of this selection:

"The two volumes of Select Poetry, form a valuable contribution to the stock of English literature. I really consider the work as the best compilation now extant. The selections and arrangements evince the taste of a correct and polished mind, the judgment of a sound and benevolent moralist, and that degree of critical skill which can only be acquired by extensive reading and scholastic acquirements,"

CONGRESS
UNITED STATES.
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
WEDNESDAY, Jan. 30.
Debate on the Georgia CLAIMS.

Mr. ELLIOT.—I cannot but be considered as a very fortunate circumstance, and one which cannot fail to have a favorable influence upon the final decision of this important question, that, since the delivery of the animated observations which yesterday so powerfully attracted the attention of the house, we have been afforded a few hours of tranquil retirement from the tempest of the forum, for the purpose, useful at all times and peculiarly so at the present time of calm reflection.
To transfer ourselves in a moment from the flowery fields of fancy, to the rugged road of argument, to descend instantaneously from the elevated scenes of eloquence to the humble walks of common sense, requires an effort transcending ordinary powers. In claiming your attention, Mr. Speaker, for a greater portion of the day than I commonly occupy in debate upon this floor, I shall not address you in the style of compliment or ceremony. It is time to banish from these walls that idle frippery of ceremonious conversation, which is suited only to a new year's compliment, or a birth day salutation, and to try to catch a little of the sturdy spirit of antiquity. A bold, a loud, an impressive appeal is made to the American people. In that appeal I fearlessly and most cordially unite. I regret, however, the existence of a precedent which at once justifies and demands these addresses to the people. Much as I wish to disseminate correct information, particularly on a subject which I believe is but imperfectly understood without these walls, except by interested persons, and convinced as I am that the subject is understood, and as opinion formed upon it, by every member of this house, I shall not so completely follow the example before us to speak to the people in the first instance, but as usual direct my observations to the house.

I propose to examine, in a concise, and if it be in my power, in an argumentative manner, the following questions, which have a direct application to the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Clark) to the resolution under consideration, and which at the same time open to view the same extent of the subject.

Did the state of Georgia, in the year 1793, possess a title to the territory in question?

Were the legislature of Georgia, in 1793, invested, with the constitutional power of making a sale of the territory, and did they make such sale to those from whom the present claimants derive their title or pretended title? And if such sale was made, what title or color of title did it convey?

Were the members of the legislature of Georgia in 1793, invested with the constitutional power of rescuing the acts of their predecessors in relation to such sale, and did they rescind them?

Were the claims or pretended claims of the present claimants in any manner recognized by the act of cession of the territory in question from Georgia to the United States?

And,
Do justice and policy, or either justice or policy, require that the whole or any part of the five millions of acres, reserved by the act of cession from Georgia to the United States, for the purpose of satisfying claims of a certain description against Georgia, in reference to the said territory should be appropriated for the purpose of satisfying the claims of the present claimants?

However extensive the outline which I have sketched of the subject, the survey will be a rapid one.

It is necessary that I should make one or two preliminary observations. I have uniformly been opposed to the doctrine which has been so powerfully advocated that Congress is competent to make a legislative decision upon the validity or invalidity of the conflicting acts of Georgia. We possess no such powers. But as individuals we may express our opinions. Nor am I disposed to do any thing which shall have a tendency to impugn the title of the United States to this territory. Without deciding the question of title, my principal object is to show that the claimants are in possession of so strong a color of title, that it will be good policy to authorize a negotiation with them for the abandonment of their claim, especially as we have a prospect of obtaining that abandonment on their part without going beyond the reservation in the act of cession, and of course without the actual expense of a single dollar to the U.

States.

1793, possess a title to the territory in question?

To answer this enquiry, it is only necessary to make one or two quotations from the articles of agreement and cession, entered into the 24th of April, eighteen hundred and two, between the commissioners of the United States and those of Georgia.
In the first article "the state of Georgia, cedes to the United States all the right, title and claim, which the said state has to the jurisdiction and soil of the lands situated within the boundaries of the United States south of the state of Tennessee." &c. By the second article, "The United States accept the cession above mentioned, and on the conditions therein expressed; and they cede to the state of Georgia whatever claim, right or title, they may have to the jurisdiction or soil of any lands lying within the United States, and out of the proper boundaries of any other state, and situated south of the southern boundaries of the states of Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina, and east of the boundary line herein above described, as the eastern boundary of the territory ceded by Georgia to the United States." Whatever claim or title the United States might pretend to have had to the territory, they thought proper, in 1802, to combine with it, and to fortify it by that of Georgia; and surely we shall not do any act, or adopt any principle, tending to impair the title under which we now exercise jurisdiction over the territory.

Were the legislature of Georgia, in 1793, invested with the constitutional power of making a sale of the territory, and did they make such sale to those from
title or pretended title? And if such sale
it convey?

In this age of political revolution and reformation, for I consider it as an age of reformation as well as revolution, there are still certain principles and maxims, not merely venerable for their antiquity, but consecrated by their conformity to the common sense and reason of mankind, which are considered as universal in their application, and irresistible in their influence. Among these may be numbered the principles which attach to the government of every regularly organized community, the power of pledging the public faith, and that of alienating the right of soil of the vacant territory of the nation. In every free government there must exist the power of legislation or of making laws, a distinct power charged with the execution of the laws, and a judicial power; the union of these different powers in the same man or body of men is the very essence of despotism. Thus in France, prior to the revolution, it was a fundamental maxim of state that the king was the legislator of the French monarchy; and the power exercised in some instances by certain parliaments, of refusing to register the edicts of the monarch, however in practice it might operate as an obstruction to legislation, was in theory only a matter of form, or at most but a temporary check upon the executive power. In oligarchies, the legislative power is vested in the rich and noble, and in aristocracies, in a few individuals who are presumed to be the wisest and the best in the community. In governments of the democratic form, this power resides in the great body of the people, and is exercised by themselves or their representatives. The base of the temple of American liberty is democracy, or the sovereignty of the people; representation and confederation are the principal pillars which support the great superstructure. As the state governments are unquestionably representative democracies, the general government is a representative federal republic. In every government of the representative form, the representatives of the people are vested with power to pledge the public faith, and to alienate the vacant territory of the nation. Were the members of the legislature of Georgia, in 1793, invested with this authority? Certainly it was within the sphere of those constitutional rights and powers, which had never been surrendered to the general government.

We have since recognised that authority by receiving a solemn deed of cession of the territory, from a subsequent legislature of Georgia, transferring to us not only the soil, but the right of jurisdiction. Was this authority exercised in 1793. In the act of the legislature of that state of the 7th of January in that year, granting this territory to those from whom the present claimants derive their claims, certain lands are described, and it is enacted that those lands shall be sold to such and such persons, as tenants in common and not as joint tenants.

The lands shall be sold, or in other words, the right of soil shall be alienated. A proper distinction is taken between the domi-nium utile and the dominium directum of the civilians. No transfer was made of the right of jurisdiction, although such imaginary transfer forms a prominent article in the reasons assigned by the legislature of 1793 for passing the rescinding act. From this view of the subject, whatever may be the present state of the question of legal title, who can doubt that the present claimants, honest purchasers from the original granttees, upon the faith of an independent state and innocent of fraud, if fraud existed, possess such a color of title, such an equitable claim, as to render it prudent and politic to enter into a compromise with them upon reasonable terms.

Copy of a letter from Commodore Preble to the Secretary of the Navy.

[Accompanying the President's message, inserted in the Advertiser, of Wednesday last.]

August 5th. We were at anchor with the squadron about two leagues north from the city of Tripoli, the Argus in chase of a small vessel to the westward, which she soon came up with, and brought within hail. She proved to be a French privateer of 4 guns, which put into Tripoli a few days since for water, and left it this morning. I prevailed on the captain for a consideration, to return to Tripoli, for the purpose of landing 14 very badly wounded Tripolitans, which I put on board his vessel with a letter to the prime minister, leaving it at the option of the bashaw, to reciprocate this generous mode of conduct ing the war. The sending these unfortunate men on shore to be taken care of by their friends, was an act of humanity on our part, which I hope will make a proper impression on the minds of the barbarians; but I doubt it. All hands were busily employed altering the rig of the three prizes, from latten vessels to sloops, and preparing for a second attack. Observed one of the enemy's schooners and the brig (two corsairs) in the harbor to be dismantled, was informed by the French captain, that the damage these vessels received in the action of the 3d, had occasioned their masts being taken out.

The 7th the French privateer came out and brought me a letter from the French Consul, in which he observes, that our attack of the 3d instant had disposed the Bashaw to accept of reasonable terms; and invited me to send a boat to the rocks with a flag of truce, which was declined, as the white flag was not hoisted at the Bashaw's castle. At 9 A. M. with a very light breeze from the Eastward, and a strong current, which obliged the Constitution to remain at anchor, I made the signal for the light vessels to weigh, and the gun and bomb boats to cast off and stand in shore towards the Western batteries, the prize boats having been completely fitted for service, and the command of them given to Lieutenant Crane, of the Vixen, Thorne, of the Enterprize, and Caldwell of the Syren; the whole advanced with sails and oars.
The orders were for the bombs to take a position in a small bay to the westward of the city, where but few of the enemy's guns could be brought to bear on them, but from whence they could annoy the town with shells. The gun-boats, to silence a battery of seven heavy guns, which guarded the approach to that position, and the brigs and schooners to support them, in case the enemy's flotilla should venture out. At half past 1, P. M. a breeze from N. N. E. I weighed with the Constitution, and stood in for the town, but the wind being on shore made it imprudent to engage the batteries with the ship, as in case of a mast being shot away the loss of the vessel would probably ensue, unless a change of wind should favour our getting off. At half past 2, P.
M. the bomb and gun-boats having gained their stations, the signal was made for them to attack the town and batteries. Our bombs immediately commenced throwing shells, and the gun-boats opened a sharp and well directed fire on the town and batteries within point blank shot, which was warmly returned by the enemy. The seven gun battery in less than two hours was silenced, except one gun. I presume the others were dismounted by our shot; as the walls were almost totally destroyed. At a quarter past 3 P. M. a ship hove in sight to the northward, standing for the town; made the Argus signal to chase. At half past 3 one of our prize gun boats was blown up by a hot shot from the enemy, which passed thro' her magazine. She had on board 18 officers seamen and marines; 10 of whom were killed, and 6 wounded. Among the killed were James R. Caldwell, first lieu. of the Syren, and midshipman John S. Dorsey, both excellent officers; midshipman Spence and 11 men were taken up unhurt. Captain Decatur, whose division this boat belonged to, and was near her at the time she blew up, reports to me that Mr. Spence was superintending the loading of the gun at that moment, and not withstanding the boat was sinking, he, and the brave fellows surviving, finished charging, gave three cheers as the boat went from under them, and swam to the nearest boats, where they assisted during the remainder of the action. The enemy's gun boats and galleys (15 in number) were all in motion close under the batteries, and appeared to meditate an attack on our boats; the Constitution, Nautilus and Enterprise were to windward ready at every hazard to cut them off, from the harbor, if they should venture down; while the Syren and Vixen were near our boats to support and cover any of them that might be disabled. The enemy thought it most prudent, however, to retire to their snug retreat behind the rocks, after firing a few shot. Our boats, in two divisions under captains Somers and Decatur, were well conducted, as were our bomb vessels, by lieuts. Dent and Robinson. The town must have suffered much from this attack, and their batteries, particularly the seven gun battery, must have lost many men. At half past 5 P. M. the wind began to freshen from the N. N. E. I made the signal for the gun and bomb boats to retire from action, and for the vessels to which they were attached to take them in tow. The Argus made a signal that the strange sail was a friend. In this day's action No. 4 had a 24 pound shot through her hull; No. 6 had her latteen yard shot away; No. 8 a 24 pound shot through her hull, which killed two men. Some of the other boats had their rigging and sails considerable cut. We threw 48 shells, and about 500 24 pound shot into the town and batteries. All the officers and men engaged in the action behaved with the utmost intrepidity. At half past 6 all the boats were in tow, and the squadron standing to the N. W. At 8 the John Adams, capt. Chancey, from the United States, joined company. At 9 the squadron anchored, Tripoli bearing S. E. 5 miles distant. Gun boat No. 3 was this day commanded by Mr. Brooks, master of the Argus, and No. 6 by lieutenant Wadsworth, of the Constitution. Annexed is a return of our loss in this attack.

Killed—Gun-boat No. 9, 1 lieutenant,
1 midshipman,
1 boatswain's-mate,
1 quarter gunner, 1 sergeant of mariner, and 5 seamen.
Ditto, gun-boat No. 8,
2 seamen.

Wounded—gun-boat No. 9, 6 seamen, two of which mortally.

Captain Chauncey brought me the first positive information that any reinforcement was to be expected. By him I was honored with your letters of the 7th, 22d and 31st of May, informing me that four frigates were coming out under Commodore Barron, who is to supersede me in the command of our naval forces in these seas, at the same time, approving my conduct, and conveying to me the thanks of the President for my services; I beg of you, Sir, to accept my warmest thanks for the very obliging language in which you have made these communications, and to assure the President, that to merit the applause of my country, is my only aim, and to receive it, the highest gratification it can bestow.

Captain Chauncey informed me that the frigates might be expected every moment, as they were to sail from Hampton Roads 4 days after him; in consequence of this information, and as I could not bring the John Adams into action, she having left all her gun carriages for her gun deck, except 8, on board the Congress and Constellation a day or two previous to her sailing; I determined to wait a few days for the arrival of Commodore Barron before another attack, when, if he should arrive, the fate of Tripoli must be decided in a few hours, and the Bashaw completely humbled. Had the John Adams brought out her gun carriages, I should not have waited a moment, and can have no doubt but the next attack would make the arrival of more ships unnecessary for the termination of the Tripoline war. I gave Captain Chauncey orders to remain on the station, that we might be benefited by the assistance of his boats and men, as nearly half the crews of the Constitution, brigs and schooners, are taken out to man the bombs, guns & ships boats when prepared for an attack.

MONDAY, MARCH 4.

The United States frigate John Adams, Captain Chauncey, (with Commodore Preble and Consul O'Brien and family on board) from the Mediterranean, arrived at Sandy Hook on Saturday last, and will probably come up the first fair wind. Captain Newman, of the ship Laura, spoke her on Saturday, and informs, that there are a number of Turks on board. N. Y. P.

From the WASHINGTON FEDERALIST of March 2.

IT gives us pleasure to announce the triumph of reason and justice, over the spirit of party, in the acquittal of Judge Chafe. We sincerely hope that it will have a tendency to allay the spirit of intolerance, prejudice and party animosity, which has so long disgraced our country. On the one hand it will be seen, that although the democratic prints, and many of the high-toned of that sect, have long since pronounced sentence on the judge; yet after a full, patient, and laborious investigation, his political opponents have joined in pronouncing him innocent. On the other hand let us do justice to the conduct that could acquit a political opponent, whom party spirit had doomed to destruction. Let the mutual disappointment of these opinions, formed by prejudice, give rise to a more tolerant and liberal spirit.

With pleasure we record the names of Messrs. Galliard, Bradley, Mitchell, Smith of New-York, Smith of Ohio, and Smith of Vermont, as fitting a bright and worthy example to their country, in sacrificing party feelings at the shrine of justice.

The aggregate number of votes on the eight articles, are twenty two for acquittal and, twelve for condemnation. This is equally honorable to judge Chafe and his judges.

A faithful, impartial, and accurate, report of the testimony, the arguments of the managers, and the counsel, and the whole proceedings on the trial of judge Chafe, is now in the press, and will soon be finished. The proceedings were taken by a short hand writer, well qualified for the task.

If judge Chafe is innocent, on us, and on all the people of the United States, be the disgrace of having dragged him to the bar of justice. Let us be conformed to infamy, whilst hosannas are shouted to his praise, and let it be said that shall it be done to him, whom the highest judiciary tribunal of the United States delighteth to honor.

(Speech of J. Randolph.)

Yesterday the High Court of Impeachment, met, agreeable to a resolution, to pass judgment in the case of Judge Chafe.

The President informed the Court, that they had heard the evidence, and were to decide on the articles separately.

The articles were then read separately, and the President rose up, called by name, in alphabetical order, upon each Member of the Court, and put the question in the words following; each Member standing till he had answered. "How say you—is Samuel Chafe, Esq. guilty or not guilty of a high crime or misdemeanor, as charged in the Article of Impeachment just read?" The answers were as follow:

On the first Article.

Guilty—Messrs. Anderson, Baldwin, Breckenridge, Brown, Cocke, Condit, Ellery, Franklin, Howland, Logan, M'Clay, Moore, Stone, Sumpter, Worthington, Wright.—16.

On the third Article.

Guilty. Messrs. Anderson, Baldwin, Breckenridge, Brown, Cocke, Condit, Ellery, Franklin, Giles, Howland, Jackson, Logan, M'Clay, Moore, Smith, (of Maryland), Sumpter, Worthington, Wright.—18.

Not Guilty. Messrs. Adams, Bayard, Bradley, Dayton, Gailliard, Hillhouse, Mitchell, Olcott, Pickering, Plumer, Smith, (of New York), Smith, (of Ohio), Smith, (of Vermont), Stone, Tracy, White.—16.

On the fourth Article.

Guilty. Messrs. Anderson, Breckenridge, Brown, Cocke, Condit, Ellery, Franklin, Giles, Howland, Jackson, Logan, M'Clay, Moore, Smith, (of Maryland), Stone, Sumpter, Worthington, Wright.—18.

Not Guilty, Messrs. Adams, Baldwin, Bayard, Bradley, Dayton, Gailliard, Hillhouse, Mitchell, Olcott, Pickering, Plumer, Smith (of New York,) Smith (of Ohio), Smith, (of Vermont), Tracy, White.—16.

On the fifth Article.

Unanimously not guilty.

On the sixth Article.

Guilty. Messrs. Breckenridge, Cocke, Howland, M'Clay.

Not Guilty. Messrs. Adams, Anderson, Baldwin, Bayard, Bradley, Brown, Condit, Dayton, Ellery, Franklin, Gailliard, Giles, Hillhouse, Jackson, Logan, Mitchell, Moore, Olcott, Pickering, Plumer, Smith (of Maryland) Smith (of New York) Smith (of Ohio) Smith (of Vermont,) Stone, Sumpter, Tracy, White, Worthington, Wright.—30.

On the seventh Article.

Guilty. Messrs. Breckenridge, Cocke, Franklin, Howland, Jackson, M'Clay, Smith of Maryland, Stone, Sumpter, Wright.—10.

Not Guilty. Messrs. Adams, Anderson, Baldwin, Bayard, Bradley, Brown, Condit, Dayton, Ellery, Gailliard, Giles, Hillhouse, Logan, Mitchell, More, Olcott, Pickering, Plumer, Smith of New York, Smith of Ohio, Smith of Vermont, Tracy, White, Worthington.—24.

On the eighth Article.

Guilty. Messrs. Anderson, Baldwin, Breckenridge, Brown, Cocke, Condit, Ellery, Franklin, Giles, Howland, Jackson, Logan, M'Clay, Moore, Smith, (of Maryland), Stone, Sumpter, Worthington, Wright.—19.

Not Guilty. Messrs. Adams, Bayard, Bradley, Dayton, Gailliard, Hillhouse, Mitchell, Olcott, Pickering, Plumer, Smith of New York, Smith, (of Ohio), Smith, (of Vermont), Tracy, White.—15.

The President then said "there not being a constitutional majority on any one article, it becomes my duty to pronounce that Samuel Chafe, Esq. is acquitted on the articles of impeachment exhibited against him by the House of Representatives."—The Court then adjourned.

IN COMMON COUNCIL,

suppose, to egregiously swindle me out of my money.

He is about 6 feet high, swarthy complexion, gentle appearance, the little finger of his left hand broke, walks very erect, has a peculiar way of shaking his head. Any information respecting said Swindler, will be thankfully re-

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,

County of Alexandria, to wit:

November term, 1804.

Alexander Henderson,
J. n. complainant
AGAINST
Etienne John Branston
and James Towers, defendants.

In CHANCERY.

THE defendant, Etienne John Branston, not having entered his appearance and given security, according to the act of assembly and the rules of this court; and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court, upon affidavit, that the said defendant, Etienne John Branston, is not an inhabitant of this district; on motion of the said complainant, by his counsel, it is ordered, that the said defendant, Etienne John Branston, do appear here on the first day of June term next, and enter his appearance to the suit, and give security for performing the decree of the court—and that the other defendant, James Towers, do not pay away, convey, or secrete, the debts by him owing to, or the estate or effects in his hands, belonging to the said absent defendant, Etienne John Branston, until the further order or decree of this court; and that a copy of this order be forthwith published for two months, successively, in both of the public new-papers published in this county; and that another copy be posted at the front door of the court house of said county.
